Your thoughts on objectives and goals for the Reston P&Z Committee
Primarily in connection with my work on issues associated, directly or indirectly, with the Reston Master Plan Special Study Task Force, I have become interested in planning and zoning issues in and around Reston. I have spent a great deal of time working with developers and their representatives and with citizens to better understand zoning issues in Reston, particularly issues surrounding transit oriented development. I have also spent a great deal of time studying and analyzing development issues particularly in connection with transit oriented development. To a large degree, transit oriented development will be one of the central issues facing Reston. Encouraging walking, biking and transit use will be a policy imperative, particularly since global warming will place increasing pressures on citizens to get out of single occupancy vehicles. While much of the transit oriented development will be concentrated in the rail corridor and Town Center areas, the impacts of changing development patterns will also affect the rest of Reston. Addressing the treatment of proposals to develop or redevelop the Village Centers will be one of the other major area of issues affecting Reston. It seems to me that the Reston P&Z offers a vehicle for me to continue to consider and potentially affect zoning and planning issues in Reston. I would be pleased to do so. In fairness, I am confident that there are others on and off the P&Z Committee who are better trained concerning many of the relevant planning and zoning issues than I am. But in the last few years, I have thought more about the relevant issues for Reston than have most non-planning professionals. As a result, I think I can make a useful contribution to the P&Z's work. Note that I will be committed to an RCC meeting for the 3rd Monday in June and out of town for the 3rd Monday in July. While I do not know my schedule, there is a reasonable chance that I will have a conflict over the 3rd Monday in either September or October.
